Greetings classmates! We hope that the New Year is a joyful one, and that you will send items for this column.

Henry McDonald sent a most cordial letter with a brief overview of his life since Cal, where he met his wife, Marrian, when he returned to Berkeley on the G.I. Bill. Marian flew with Pan American and Henry served as associate director for the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory. He retired in 1986 and they now live in Danville and enjoy their three children and five grandchildren. He closed by writing, “Not much, however, compares to just being Cal graduates.” In a previous column I referred to Mary Lou (Willis) Berg as the Director of the Blue and Gold. Correction: Mary Lou was Associate Director and Mardy (Pletcher) Robinson was the Director. A great team, and they produced great books. It’s still fun to read those handsome volumes and remember. On campus recently I stopped to admire our class gift. You may recall it is an attractive sculptural fountain, which began as an eternal flame, but has since been converted to a water fountain. Whatever its purpose, it stands gracefully in a grassy glade just north of Dwinelle Hall. Stop by and take a look when you’re on campus again.

Class Secretaries: Dick Duhring, 13871 Robleda Rd, Los Altos Hills 94022, fbd@duhring.net; Virginia Pearson Anderson, 100 Bay Pl, #2001, Oakland 94610

Your co-class secretary, Carolyn Robinson Storer died last year (see In Memoriam). She was a resident of Rossmoor and from a staunch and vibrant Cal family. Lefty Stern from Santa Rosa tells us about a Pappy’s Boys banquet last fall attended by Pete Schabarum, Ray Solari, and Ed Bartlett. Lefty and wife, Gay Stern, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary in 2015 with their entire family in a villa in Tuscany. Jean and Bill Hagler retired near their family in Salinas. Your secretary should be hearing from you regarding your change of lifestyle. How many of us live in retirement enclaves? Let us hear from you as we approach our 65th anniversary. Anybody interested in a reunion? Let your class secretary know and we will arrange a luncheon. I want to hear from you!

Class Secretaries: Elayne McCrea McCabe, 23500 Cristo Rey Dr #503H, Cupertino 95014, elayne.mccabe@yahoo.com

Peter A. Meredith still plays senior softball and works on genealogy. Peter’s daughter Karen is a third generation Cal graduate, and wife Jean Nelson Meridith is also a member of the class of 1954. Dick Melbye, a 1958 Boalt Law School graduate is a retired trial attorney. He is a major donor to Cal and a member of the San Francisco Grid Club. Chap Milbank is a retired attorney after spending 55 years in Oregon. Mas Nakano retired from Lockheed/Martin in 1994. He and his wife Georgia descend from immigrants from Japan.

Class Secretaries: Bob Leslie, 40 Windward Hill, Oakland, CA 94618, relarbmed@aol.com; Rosemary Meehan Mein, 3748 St. Francis Dr, Lafayette 94549, fax 925/283-2318, rose-mein@comcast.net

Our 1956 Class Book Conservator Emily Ramos sent a note explaining some of the important work she does for the University’s Libraries. She conserves a wide variety of books and materials from special collections. Sometimes an object isn’t what it seems to be when it arrives in the conservation lab. Mr. William Shakespeare’s Comedies, Histories and Tragedies (1663 edition) arrived in the lab for some minor paper mending. This book is very popular and is used a lot in classes held at the Bancroft Library. Before she sends a book, she examines it very carefully. She discovered more tears throughout the book and also the tiniest “FS by Harris” in the text at different locations. Why was this name “printed” in a book of Shakespeare? She discovered that John Harris and his family were famous copyists. What she was looking at wasn’t printing ink, but pen ink. She consulted with David Faulds, Curator for Rare Books and Literary Manuscripts. They discovered that a total of five leaves of the book went missing many years ago and someone commissioned Harris to create facsimile pages to replace them. It is remarkable that without this tiny autograph, it would be almost impossible to tell they were not printed in the 17th century. Our class endowment supports Emily’s important work. Please be generous in remembering your days at Cal so we can continue to support the Preservation Department. Don’t forget to mark Friday, September 30 for our 60th reunion. Please volunteer to help with your reunion and aid the Development Department too. I look forward to hearing from my classmates.

Class Notes
Many will recall that Colette Morgan Murray was ASUC’s second vice president during our senior year. She writes from North Carolina that she and husband Dick built a new home in Wilmington, North Carolina, and moved there from Raleigh to be closer to the Atlantic. They initially moved to North Carolina to be closer to her daughter, Thea. Colette just completed a three-year term on the National Board of the Alpha Delta Pi Foundation. Colette and Dick are co-owners of Paschal Murray Executive Search, which focuses on recruiting senior-level fundraisers for universities, hospitals, and other nonprofits; the University of California system is among their clients. They hope to be partially retired by our 60th reunion in 2018. Allan Kingston and his wife Patti ‘60 have retired to Lincoln after his long career as the initial president and CEO of Century Housing Corporation, one of the nation’s largest nonprofit affordable housing lenders and social service providers. It serves more than 12,000 Southern California households. He also served three years as chairman of the National Housing Conference and remains a board member on several national and state-wide housing organizations, focusing mainly on homeless veterans and homelessness. We hope that 2016 will bring more news of our None So Great As ’58 classmates.

Charles B. Hall is the founder and board president of the new nonprofit, Clubfinder. Its purpose, as a resource to Gay-Straight Alliance Clubs in secondary schools across America, is to fund club projects submitted to www.clubfinder.org. Each project is reviewed for meaningful content and communication throughout the school. If approved, a check for up to $250 is sent to the school earmarked for the Gay-Straight Alliance Club to create the project. These clubs save lives through clarifying understanding for LGBTQ and straight students alike. They provide a safe space for youth. Go Gerald McFarland’s latest novel, The Last of Our Kind (2015), completes the Buena Ventura Series trilogy. Kirkus Reviews: “A very satisfying blend of the historical novels of James Michener and the spiritual accounts of Carlos Castaneda.” Lido Cantarutti was awarded the title of Commandatore (Knight Commander of the Order of Merit of the Republic of Italy) by the President of Italy. Lido was one of only four American-born recipients of this rare honor in 2015. The title recognizes Lido’s meritorious service to Italy through his 39 years as director of the Italian Film Festival in San Rafael and his 30 years as an Italian-language teacher at the College of Marin.

Someone forgot to tell the class of ’61 that we are old. What are you doing? Don’t save all your news for our 55th reunion this fall. We recently lost memorable class member Jane Semple Wood (see In Memoriam). She was class secretary for many years and got her start in journalism at the Daily Cal. Dori Robbins, our on-top-of-it class president, has found a way to combine her Cal major of social work with her longer career as a classical violinist. She produces classical concerts in La Jolla to raise funds for affordable senior housing. John Olson will soon welcome a fifth grandchild. John and his husband, Tom, are active attorneys in New York and Washington, D.C. After visiting Santa Fe, the Grand Canyon (by helicopter), Munich, Venice, and Positano they concluded they would really enjoy living in Italy, but there still is much to do. Heather McCune Thompson spent much of 2015 travelling. After boating up the Mekong River, she took a cruise circumnavigating the British Isles. She keeps travelling locally by taking weekend treks with an AAUW group. Bruce Kane is still writing plays. There were very positive reviews for his Masochism Tango presentation at the Whitefire Theatre in Sherman Oaks. 55th Reunion is scheduled for Friday, Nov. 18, 2016. There will likely be a few events throughout the weekend, including a block of tickets at Big Game, so we are encouraging alumni to “save the date” for Nov. 18–20. A correction email will be sent to the class shortly.

Robert McNulty celebrated 40 years of leadership of the founding of Partners for Livable Communities in 1975 at a national conference on neighborhood conservation in New York City. Some 100 friends and colleagues gathered in Georgetown, Washington, D.C. In attendance were some trustees, past board chairs and guests. Class Secretaries: Donna Dutton, 758 Old Quarry Rd, Larkspur 94939, donnadi2@aol.com; Richard Cerruti, 3161 Paseo Rita, San Juan Capistrano 92675, racerruti@hotmail.com

The Class of ’66 is now planning in earnest for our 50th Reunion this fall. Efforts are being spearheaded by Marily Allen Howekamp, the Campaign Chair for the Class of 1966 Library Endowment, and Phil Litts, the Chair of the Reunion Event. Preliminary discussions have centered on having a reunion warm-up event during the homecoming weekend of September 30–October 1 followed by a grand reunion celebration around the weekend of the Big Game, on November 17-19. If anybody would like to be involved in planning the reunion or has ideas for speakers, etc., please let Phil know at phillitts@cbglobal.net, and please help spread the word among classmates!

Pete Crosby is semi-retired and consulting for industrial and consumer products manufacturers and distributors. Pete is a co-founder and principal emeritus for CGR Management Consultants, LLC. He and his wife, Janet, have gone on nine sea and river cruises since they were married in 2010, making the most of their spare time. Pete’s first wife, Stevie Ellis ‘67 passed away from breast cancer in 2007. You can reach Pete at pcrosby@cgrmc.com.

Sharon (Boles) James, who writes under the name, Sherri Leigh James, is publishing her first murder mystery novel, A Girl With A Past. It is both an eBook and a print book on Amazon. The book tells the story of a fictional Cal co-ed who thought tear gas was all she had to fear on the day she was murdered in Berkeley in the 1960s. In 2008, Berkeley student Alexandra Nichols’ interest in Lexi’s murder stirs up trouble that forces her to solve the 40-year-old homicide in order to protect her family. Transcendental twists in her dangerous hunt for the serial killer reveals secrets and that she is the girl with a past.

John R. Mcalister is the Mayor of the Mountain View. Denise P. Kalm is thrilled to announce the reunion school bound book, First Job Savvy—Find a Job, Start Your Career. Her book is designed for new graduates and for those making major mid-life career changes. It provides details on defining the job you want, building and using your network, interviewing, closing the deal, and successfully managing the first six months. Denise is a marketing consultant for software companies and a writer.

80 Your class secretary attended a stellar Cal basketball season with fellow 1980 classmate Big Leo O’Farrell. At the first game, I was pleased to see one of my former law students, Ryan Maquinana ‘05 sitting next to me (along with former Cal basketball star, Omar Wilkes). I attended a Cal football victory with Grant Harris ’98, former ASUC President, and his lovely family, and another one with my daughter, Teresa, a UCSC alum. The highlight of the football season was Cal’s win over ASU, which I attended with new Cal alum (and my son) Tomas ’15. Class Secretary: Kevin Johnson, 232 Tern Pl, Davis 95616, kejohnson@ucdavis.edu

85 Barry Scott Zellen is pleased to announce publication of his 12th book, which explores the nexus of tribalism and conflict in world politics. Land, Indigenous People, and Conflict is the very first book in Routledge’s new Complex Real Property Rights Series. The book explores how the ongoing constitutional, legal, and political integration of indigenous peoples into contemporary society has impacted indigenous institutions and structures for managing land and property, providing lessons and insights from conflict resolution that may find application in other conflicts including inter-state and civil and sectarian conflicts. Lois (Wallace) Brandt is the author of Maddi’s Fridge, a picture book based on her own childhood experience. As a child, Lois opened up her best friend’s refrigerator and discovered that the family was in desperate need of food. The book has received the 2014 Christopher Award, the 2015 International Literacy Association Award for Primary Fiction, and an Anti-Defamation League Book of the Month. Lois spends her time visiting elementary schools and talking to children about the importance of sharing stories that are close to their hearts. Class Secretary: Flora Lee, 224 Congo St, San Francisco 94131, bearbuni@iol.com

89 Dr. Michael Mann is Distinguished Professor of Meteorology and Director of the Earth System Science Center at Penn State University. His research focuses on understanding climate variability and human caused climate change. He was selected by Scientific American as one of the 50 leading visionaries in science and technology in 2002. He was organizing committee chair for the National Academy of Sciences, Frontiers of Science in 2003 and contributed to the award of the 2007 Nobel Peace Prize with other IPCC lead authors. He has authored more than 180 publications, and two books including Dire Predictions and The Hockey Stick and the Climate Wars. Class Secretary: Brett Kanazawa, 651 Stamm Ave, Mountain View 94040-2530, 510/550-6839

01 Eric Ball has been elected to the partnership at Fenwick & West, a leading legal firm. Eric earned his B.A. in Rhetoric and Legal Studies from Berkeley with honors in 2001. He also received his J.D. from Berkeley (Boalt) Law in 2005 where he graduated with honors and was elected to the Order of the Coif. His legal insights have been quoted in leading national and legal publications including Bloomberg BNA and Corporate Counsel. Nima Amini is a member of the Mergers and Acquisitions and Private Equity practices in Hong Kong. He focuses on inbound and outbound cross-border deals. Amini also advises clients on U.S. and Hong Kong securities laws. Amini earned his J.D. from Columbia Law School in 2005, where he was a Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar, and his B.A., magna cum laude, from Berkeley in 2001. Sandra Zalman has published her first book, Consuming Surrealism in American Culture: Dissident Modernism (Ashgate, 2015). Class Secretary: Christina Noz, 800 W Panorama Rd, Tucson, AZ 85704-3912, 520/577-5559, chriznox@yahoo.com

02 Cantor Colburn, one of the largest intellectual property law firms in the country, has hired Srikant Viswanadham as a partner in its Atlanta office. Akiko Nishino is an attorney at Bet Tzedek Legal Services. She is receiving the organization’s Community Justice Award later this month. Class Secretary: Ospracha Jiwajinda, jiwa-jinda@alum.berkeley.edu

03 Stella Nair recently published a new book, At Home with the Sapa Inca: Architecture, Space, and Legacy at Chinchero, (Austin: University of Texas Press). Her book explores the history of an Inca royal estate before and after the Spanish invasion and sheds new light on the architectural achievements of one of the largest empires of the Early Modern world. Class Secretary: Amy Lei, 415/812-5479, kamylei@alumni.berkeley.edu

04 Nicholas Huzieff writes: “I’ve been teaching English as a foreign language since 2007. I’ve taught in Ukraine, Saudi Arabia and was selected as an English Language Fellow for a program sponsored by the U.S. Department of State in 2014. I currently teach at a university and train teachers in the Republic of Moldova. I also develop curriculum for a course at a U.S. Embassy-sponsored center called American Corner. I’ve presented a handful of workshops around the world, including Romania, New York, and Ukraine (and one planned for UC Santa Barbara in July 2016). I have a wife and two daughters as well. All told, I am very happy with what I have been able to achieve!”

Christina Hioureas addressed the United Nations General Assembly on Nov. 5, on the report of the International Court of Justice (ICJ). The ICJ hears State-to-State disputes, ranging from determining whether Kosovo’s Declaration of Independence was valid under international law to delineating the maritime boundary between Somalia and Kenya for purposes of oil and gas exploration rights. She presented to the Ambassadors, Ministers, and diplomats of the 193 United Nations member states, as well as to ICJ judges, academics, and special rapporteurs. Hioureas addressed the United Nations on the role of the ICJ in the peaceful settlement of disputes, rather than military action.

05 University of Virginia School of Law professor Michael Gilbert is this year’s recipient of the UVA Student Council Distinguished Teaching Award. The award is given annually to recognize a teacher who makes a positive and lasting impact on the university by developing relationships with students through the creation of an engaging and challenging classroom atmosphere. Class Secretary: Amy Wang, yammyamy@gmail.com

11 Antoinette Siu is staff writer and copyeditor at the San Francisco Examiner.

We currently have no class secretary listed for the following classes: ‘29–‘31, ‘39, ‘45, ‘97, ‘04, and ‘06 onward. If you are the class secretary, please contact the magazine office at 510/642-5981.
In Memoriam

37 Evans Noyes Klingner, Oct. 20, in Belmont. Evans was a certified public accountant and founding partner of the San Francisco CPA firm, Boydstun & Klingner. He is survived by his wife, Ruth ’69, three children, five grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

40 Ramon Cayot, Nov. 2, in Walnut Creek. After earning his bachelor’s degree in civil engineering from Cal, Ray worked for Pacific Gas & Electric Company for 43 years. He headed the Department of Engineering Research from 1967 until his retirement in 1983. Ray served in the Army from 1940 to 1946, in San Francisco, Alaska, and New Jersey. He is survived by daughters Nancy, Carole ’66, Judy ’72, Annette ’72, and Linda; grandchildren Grant, Tirzah ’78, Caleb, Maryn, Heather, Leif, Emily, and Jessica ’00; and nine great-grandchildren.

42 Anna Jean Golino, Dec. 17, in La Selva Beach. Anna grew up in Stockton before going to Cal. She met husband, Carlo ’48, in an Italian course at Berkeley. She is survived by eight children, 17 grandchildren, and 17 great-grandchildren.

Lois Brown Dittrich, Jan. 13, 2015, in Santa Cruz. Everyone who knew Lois appreciated her gentle soul, graciousness, intellect, and open-mindedness. Lois loved California and lived in the Bay Area most of her life. Upon graduation from Cal, she moved out of state for a job and immediately met Joseph Dittrich Jr., the love of her life. They were married for 40 years. She served on the church council, taught Sunday school, was the newsletter editor and church historian. Lois is survived by her two daughters, grandson, and primary caregiver, Janice.

43 Norbert W. Dean, Feb. 9, in Temecula. Norb enlisted in the Navy during WWII. He graduated with a B.S. in electrical engineering. He trained on a war submarine before becoming the electronics and communication officer on USS Dentuda #335, which was a target vessel at the Bikini Atoll atom bomb test. In May 2014 he was part of the World War II honor flight from San Diego to Washington, D.C. Norb and his wife, Judy, his one and only love of nearly 40 years, enjoyed living aboard their Columbia 45, New Moon, for many years until they purchased their 40-acre ranch near Temecula.

Grover Klemmer, Aug. 23, in Oakland. Grover was a two-time national champion runner and a former world record holder in the 440 at Cal. He also played football and basketball, but it was in track that he achieved his greatest success. During a six-week span in 1941 he set and participated in four world records. In 1988, he was inducted into the Cal Athletic Hall of Fame. Grover had a 39-year career in education and coaching at San Francisco City College. Above all, he was loyal to family and friends and respected by all who knew him—an honorable man. He is survived by his wife, Elaine ’43, two children, six grandchildren, and eight great-grandchildren.

James N. Shoelery, Sept. 24. James was born on June 25, 1925 in Worland, WY. After graduating from Cal, he received his Ph.D. from Caltech. In late 1951, Jim joined Varian Associates and helped build the first commercial NMR spectrometer. During the next 20 years he developed the procedures for using NMR for chemical analysis and guided the development of improved NMR spectrometers. He wrote “NMR at Work,” a decade-long series published on the back cover of the Journal of the American Chemical Society (ACS), and A Basic Guide to NMR (1972). Dr. Shoelery received the ACS Sargent Award for the Outstanding Young Chemist in 1961 and the ACS Award for Chemical Instrumentation in 1965. Jim mentored a generation of organic chemists worldwide who recall his generosity fondly. In addition to his wife Judith, Jim is survived by three sons, three stepchildren, and 13 grandchildren.

Jayne Ellen (McGinnis) Weyeneth, Sept. 3, in Orinda. Jayne was a member of Alpha Chi Omega during her time at Cal. She died at age 88 in the home she lived in and loved for 57 years. She is survived by her children Robert ’84, Randy, James, Mary Jayne ’82, and Michael; three grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren.

49 Renate Kay, Jan. 5, in San Francisco. Born in Berlin, Germany in 1927 and raised in Oakland, Renate was an art history major who met her husband, Ronald Kay ’50, another German-Jewish émigré, while studying at Cal. She raised her three children in the Bay Area and worked as a beloved elementary school teacher in California, New York, and Massachusetts. Her active retirement included volunteering as a docent at MOMA and the San Francisco Academy of Sciences. She served as a consumer advocate at KRON and on the boards of the Cabrillo Music Festival and the San Francisco Contemporary Music Players, and as an active supporter of Other Minds, a global new music community. Renate’s love of the arts was only surpassed by her devotion to her family. She is survived by her husband; her children Debra, Leslie ’75, and Tony ’77; seven grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

50 Herbert Jones, Nov. 19, in Reedley. Herb served in Nigeria for over 30 years with SIM as a missionary, primarily as a teacher. After “retiring” and returning to the United States, Herb worked in ESL and hospitality, mainly with UC Berkeley International Students. He is survived by his wife, Marcella, five children, ten grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, and his three sisters.

Clyde Henry Grimes, Oct. 30. Clyde was born on Nov. 4, 1925 in Los Angeles. He served in the Army Air Force during WWII, for which he received the Congressional Gold Medal of Honor along with other Tuskegee Airmen. Clyde was the first black man to hold the position of Deputy State Architect of California. He married Minni Estelle Holmes in 1952 and had three children.

51 Carolyn Robinson Storer, Sept. 6, in Rossmooor. Carolyn and her three brothers were raised in Oakland, and all four graduated from Cal. She and her first husband, Bob Patmont, had four children, and she had five stepchildren from second husband, George Jackson. Their Orinda home was always full, and Carolyn’s motto was “just throw another potato in the pot.” After the kids left home, Carolyn completed certification in family counseling. She and third husband Richard Storer relocated to Auburn. In 2011, Carolyn moved to Rossmoor, where she volunteered with many organizations including as a co-secretary for the Class of 1951. She leaves behind 20 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

52 W. Stuart Lyman, M.S., Nov. 23, in Gaithersburg, MD. Stuart is survived by his wife, Martha, one son, two daughters, and six grandchildren.

54 Richard A. Greene, M.A., Oct. 19, in West Hills. Richard was a physicist and worked for many years as an analyst at the Rand Corporation. He is survived by a
Paul Grabowicz ’73, distinguished journalist of the Bay Area, died at his home in Pleasant Hill on December 24. He was 66.

Grabowicz was a part of every major news investigation in the Bay Area throughout the ’80s and ’90s. He reported on the Cypress Structure collapse following the Loma Prieta earthquake. He tracked the Unabomber case through its twists and turns. His dogged pursuit of the facts earned him a reputation for being fair and thorough.

Affectionately known as “Grabs,” he grew up in Southwick, Massachusetts, attended Clarkson University in New York, and later transferred to Berkeley. In 1973, he graduated magna cum laude with a B.A. in sociology, and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

In 1975, Grabowicz began reporting for the Berkeley Barb, and over the years wrote for The Washington Post, Esquire magazine, and Newsday, among many others. He reported for the Oakland Tribune for 20 years and was the backbone of the investigative team.

“[Grabowicz] was one of the best investigative reporters I’ve worked with in my 50 years,” said Harry Harris of the Oakland Tribune. “His coverage of crime, corruption, terrorism, and other issues should be textbook material for anyone in journalism. Bay Area journalism has lost one of its greats.”

Although many print journalists missed the digital revolution, Grabowicz embraced the changes and championed digital media. He came back to Berkeley and joined the Graduate School of Journalism, co-launching the New Media Program in 1995. He applied traditional journalism practices to online venues, giving his students fundamental tools in a quickly changing landscape.

Grabowicz’s dedication to teaching his students was well known. He instilled in them a rigorous work ethic, along with techniques for sourcing material, digging up information, and using public records. He bridged the worlds of new media and traditional print journalism.

Grabs was a cantankerous and beloved figure at the J-School. He embodied the stereotype of the hard-nosed, hard-drinking journalist, yet his kind heart connected him to his students. He is survived by his wife, Anne Miller-Grabowicz.

Barbara Small Moeller, Nov. 27 in Turlock. Born in El Centro, Barbara earned her RN from Mercy Hospital in San Diego before receiving her bachelor’s in public health from Berkeley. She served as President of Nurses on campus while at Cal. She married Ernest Moeller ’50, and they resided in Patterson for 61 years. Barbara is survived by her husband, four children (two of them UC graduates), 14 grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Jeanette Quan, Oct. 29. Born in New York City, Jeanette earned a degree in child development and went on to work as an educator with the San Francisco Unified School District. She married Michael in 1956. She is survived by her three sons.

Tevis Paul Martin, Jr., Nov. 30. Born and raised in San Francisco, Tevis attended St. Ignatius High School, Berkeley, and Hastings College of Law. At Cal, he played guard and center and was appointed to many honor societies and served as president of Theta Delta Chi fraternity. He served on the Olympic Club Board of Directors and as president in 1982. Tevis supported Cal as president of the San Francisco Grid Club and as an officer of Pappy’s Boys. He was a member of the San Carlos Civil Service and Traffic Commissions. He served 10 years in the Naval Reserve, Intelligence Division, as Lt. Commander. Tevis is survived by his wife of 61 years, Carol ’54; his children, Tevis III ’78, Linda Takimoto ’80, David, and Peter; and his grandchildren.

Nancy Harris Fraser, Nov. 13, in Walnut Creek. Nancy’s childhood was split between Berkeley, where she was born, and Siskiyou County. At Cal, Nancy majored in international relations, was an active member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority, Mortar Board, Prytanean, Torch and Shield, Cal Club, Women’s Judicial Committee, and served as a Junior Class Officer. She married Alan Fraser ’54 after graduation, and they lived in the East Bay for over 60 years. Nancy is survived by Alan; sons Bill ’85, Tom ’81, and Scott ’93; and two grandsons.

William Maurice Abend, Aug. 24, in San Francisco. William was born Jan. 11, 1931, and grew up in San Francisco. During his time at Cal he was a member of Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity. He worked at his own private practice in commercial architecture for 50 years. He is survived by his wife, Marcia Faye, his daughter, son-in-law, and grandchildren.

Philip C. Woods, Jan. 5, 2016. Although Philip retired in 1980, he was a public steward for the Environmental Protection Agency in San Francisco, he continued to work until his death. He received his B.S. in civil engineering and his M.S. in environmental engineering while in the Army ROTC. After graduation, he served in Germany where he met his wife, Mary. He returned to the United States to do postgraduate work at Cal, and he and Mary moved to San Leandro. They were married for 53 years and had twin sons.

Edwin Mayer, Dec. 30. Ed came to Cal in 1950 and joined Coach Clint Evans as a south-paw pitcher, but was lured to the Chicago Cubs after two years. He was in the majors for several years until his pitching arm let him down. He and his wife, Carol, settled in the Bay Area where they raised two daughters and a son. Ed returned to Cal, received his teaching credential, and settled into a 23-year career teaching grade school in Pacifica. In 2014, Ed was invited by the Cubs to come back to Wrigley Field in June to throw the first pitch. He was a proud grandpa to eight grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Stanley Robert Smith, M.S., Oct. 17. Stanley was born in Bakersfield on Feb. 22, 1930 and grew up in Delano. He earned both a B.A. and M.A. in electrical engineering at Cal, where he met his future wife, Lois. Between the degrees he served two years in the Army followed by eight years in the Reserves. After marrying in 1955, he and his wife moved to Palo Alto, where Stanley went on to earn an MBA from Stanford University. He then accepted a position with Hewlett-Packard, where he worked for 30 years. He is survived by his wife and three sons.

John C. Leathers, Nov. 13, in Davis. Jack was born and raised in Des Moines, IA. He liked golf and football. At Cal, he earned a degree in business, rowed crew, served as president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, and was sports editor of the yearbook. A two-year stint in the Air Force was followed by the start of his career as a stockbroker for Merrill Lynch in Oakland. In 1962 his passion for all things Scandinavian led him to meet and marry Giske Erichsen, who had recently moved to San Francisco from Norway. He was an accessible, supportive father. Jack is survived by children and grandchildren.

Alfredo Durante, Nov. 25, in Genoa, Italy. Alfredo was a CPA and prominent member of the Genovese community. At his request, both “Hail to California” and “All Hail Blue and Gold” were played at his funeral before a packed cathedral of mourners. He is survived by his wife, Adelia, step-daughter, and granddaughter.

Shirley Carvalho, Oct. 14, in Oakland. Shirley was a member of Delta Zeta sorority and a lifelong gardener who raised orchids and loved cooking. She was the youngest of five children, four of whom graduated from Berkeley. She was a positive influence on a great many lives. She shared her love of Hawaii and Yosemite with her children and grandchildren. She is survived by her husband, George Carvalho, Sr.; sons George, Ken, and Chris ‘88; and five grandchildren.

Patricia Kimball O’Connell, Dec. 21, in Downingtown, PA. Patricia is survived by five children and 11 grandchildren.

Jane Semple Wood, Nov. 3, in Cleveland, OH. At Cal, Janie worked at both The Daily Californian and the Independent Californian. She had a popular Daily Cal column in which she needled members of the Executive Committee. Her 1960 editorial, “Is Chastity Outmoded?”, put her on the front page of the San Francisco Herald Examiner. After graduation she lived in Washington, D.C., where she worked for the National Symphony Orchestra. In Shaker Heights, OH she founded Shaker Magazine, an award-winning bimonthly that she edited until retirement in 2003. She then began an emailed newsletter, This Week In Shaker, which she continued until 2013. She is survived by her husband, James M. Wood ’61, a former Pelican editor, and two sons, James Jr. ’87 and Robert. Janie and Jim maintain a memorial fund at the Bancroft Library.

Roger Jon Macray, Sept. 14, in Athens, Greece. Born in Ohio and raised in Southern California, Roger went to Berkeley for political science. He married Rita Yoder, with whom he had two sons, graduated, and served in the Army in Germany. After completing service, he got an M.A. from Cal State University, Long Beach. After his first wife’s death, Roger met and married Rosemary Rausch, with whom he had a daughter. When he retired, he spent years traveling to Mexico City, Quito, Ecuador, Buenos Aires, and India. He succumbed to lupus shortly after relocating to Athens, where Rosemary is Consul General. He was kind, intelligent, and good humored, and was a true fan of Cal, always rooting for the Bears from faraway places. He is survived by his wife, three children, and three grandchildren.

John Frederick MacDonald, M.A., April 9, in Los Angeles. John was originally from Nova Scotia, the son of a coal miner. He studied history at Cal. After graduating, John earned his Ph.D. from UCLA and wrote numerous books on radio and television programming. John was a history professor at Northeastern Illinois University. He was admired for his extensive and meticulously cataloged archive of early American broadcast material.

Lorene Lindstrom Mayer, M.A., Sept. 6, in El Cerrito. Lorene graduated as class salutatorian and Phi Beta Kappa. She worked for 25 years as a school psychologist in the West Contra Costa School District, where she had a special interest in gifted children. She was an active member and volunteer in AAUW and at Christ Lutheran Church. She is survived by her children, Karyn ’74, Randall ’77, Gregg ’87, and Kimberly ’90; and grandchildren Sophie, Jordan, Matthew ’06, and Kristin ’11.

Kathryn Bates Turner, Nov. 2, in Sacramento. She served her community as the Yolo County Law Librarian. At Cal, Kathryn was active in rally committee and Alpha Gamma Delta. She is survived by her husband, Fred ’78, and one child.

Douglass North ’42, Ph.D. ’52, was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1993 for his pioneering work in economic history. He died November 23, at age 95. North earned bachelor’s degrees from Berkeley in political science, economics, and philosophy, and a Ph.D. in economics. His breadth of knowledge made him a prominent scholar in the nascent field of economic history. He was deeply concerned with labor and class struggles, and a single question pervades his work: Why do some countries get rich, while others remain poor? North was the co-recipient, along with Robert Fogel, of the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences for his groundbreaking efforts in long-term economic modeling. Using quantitative data, he shaped the young field of historical econometrics, or cliometrics. His focus on the impact of institutions in the rise of Western Europe after the plague has revised historical economic models. He argued that institutional stagnation had a greater effect on society than technological advances have.

A conscientious objector in World War II, North became a navigator with the Merchant Marine, travelling between San Francisco and Australia. After leaving the Merchant Marine, he spent a year teaching navigation, beginning a long career in academia. North taught at the University of Washington, Seattle for 33 years; at the University of Washington, St. Louis for 28 years; and continued to teach and guest lecture at Stanford into his 90s. He was a committed educator. The day his Nobel Prize was announced, he insisted on continuing his classes.

He encouraged his students to disagree and explore new ideas. “The best way to learn is to have to learn for yourself,” said North in his Nobel bio. “You’re not really educating students by preaching at them, you’re educating students by making them think of the problems themselves and having them come up with thoughtful answers.”

He was elected a Fellow of the British Academy in 1996. With his thorough understanding of regional and cultural history, North was a sought-after consultant worldwide, from governments to advising the World Bank. He would immerse himself in a country’s culture, requiring six months’ residency before consultation.

Douglass North enjoyed music, chess, and fine cuisine and he was an avid outdoorsman, owning ranches in Northern California and Washington. He joked that he was a better photographer than an economist. North is survived by his wife of 43 years, Elisabeth; and by three sons, Douglass, Christopher, and Malcolm.
