LECTURER
Dr. Philippa Kelly (Ph.D. in Shakespeare studies) is Resident Dramaturg for the California Shakespeare Theater and regularly serves as production dramaturg for various regional theaters. She is also Professor and Chair of English at the California Jazz Conservatory. For her research, Philippa has been awarded fellowships from the Fulbright, Rockefeller, Walter and Eliza Hall, and Commonwealth Foundations at UC Berkeley, Oxford University, and Bellagio.

She has published many works, including 11 books, 45 internationally peer-reviewed articles, and 43 playbill articles. Philippa has published extensively on King Lear, the closest to her heart being her book, The King and I. A meditation on Australian identity through the lens of Shakespeare’s King Lear, The King and I illuminates contemporary social attitudes toward the fringe-dwellers of society. Finally, Philippa is proud to lead a year-round community theater group entitled Berkeley Theater Explorations, the purpose of which is to make dramaturgy foundational to community theater appreciation.

Cal lecturer’s participation cannot be guaranteed and is contingent on a minimum number of paying travelers.
