Dear Alumni and Friends of Cal,

Arts and culture are two of my passions. I have always been a voracious reader, with a particular love for history and social justice. I have a deep appreciation for the arts, from music to dance to theater. I have always been fascinated by the complex history of the African diaspora and the role that the arts have played in shaping our understanding of that history.

I believe that the arts are a powerful tool for social change, and I am committed to using my platform to promote arts education and cultural diversity. I have always been an advocate for arts education, and I have worked to ensure that all students have access to a rich and diverse arts curriculum. I am proud of the work that I have done to promote arts education in our schools, and I am grateful for the opportunity to continue to do so in my work as a public servant.

I am also committed to using my position to promote cultural diversity. I believe that we must celebrate our differences and embrace our shared humanity. I have always been an advocate for multiculturalism, and I have worked to ensure that our policies are inclusive and welcoming to all.

I am excited to share my passion for arts and culture with you, and I hope that you will join me in this important work. Together, we can make a difference in our communities and in the world.

Sincerely,

Delve deep into the fascinating significance of African-American culture in Paris!

Dear Alumni and Friends of Cal,

Art historians can now venture into a different era, thanks to Cal Discoveries. In France, you can trace the influence of the Harlem Renaissance. This collaborative program was developed with the involvement of Cal lecturers. It is not a tour of Europe, but a unique spine-tingling and thought-provoking experience that you will always remember. Professor Cloey Hewlett, an American author in Paris, is the perfect guide for those who are passionate about art history.

Cal lecturer's participation cannot be guaranteed and is contingent on a minimum number of paying travelers.
