- Lunch: 12:45 p.m.
- Afternoon: Free time
- Evening Lecture: 5:30 p.m. (once a week)
- Dinner in Hall: 6:30 p.m.

MERTON COLLEGE

As a student in the Oxford Berkeley Program, you attend classes and live at Merton College, one of the two oldest colleges at Oxford. Merton is picturesque, known for its medieval and 17th-century buildings and a garden protected by the city wall. Merton is situated on a quiet, cobbled street close to university libraries and lecture halls. Over the centuries, prominent scholars and cultural leaders have called Merton home, including four Nobel laureates and the physician who discovered the circulation of blood. At Merton, you will have access to Oxford staff who will work with you and hold regular office hours throughout the duration of your stay to assist with administrative, cultural, and logistical matters.

ACCOMMODATION AND MEALS

You will live in dormitories at Merton College—just as renowned authors T. S. Eliot and J. R. R. Tolkien did decades ago. Rooms at Merton are historic attractions and a far cry from U.S. dorms. Merton dorm amenities include weekly maid service, on-site laundry, computer and printer access, TV room, on-site library, and complimentary in-room tea service.

Dining at Merton Hall is an experience in itself! Meals are served in the magnificently appointed Hall, where historical figures such as Elizabeth I have eaten. Meals also provide opportunities to get to know your fellow scholars. Staff members dine in the Hall at High Table. They invite a few students to join them for cocktails and dinner. Joining faculty at High Table—a table raised on a platform above the rest—is a unique Oxford tradition not to be missed. Your meals include breakfast and morning coffee every day, lunch on weekdays, and dinner on weekdays and Sundays. Lunch is an informal buffet-style meal. Dinner is a formal meal on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays (business attire is encouraged) and informal on Thursdays, Fridays, and Sundays.
